

Gmech Computing and Simxon offer high performance computing assistance, services and solutions.

Our partnership combines depth and breadth within engineering solid and fluid mechanics as well as forecasting.

We may assist you with special purpose solutions addressing both hardware and software issues both in Windows and in Linux environments.

We collaborate with a variety of companies in fields such as engineering mechanics, insurance, energy, public service and research.